H B Sconyers and Company Unit Breaks Ground on Jamestown Real Estate Project

Franklin, TN - Jedd Land Company, owned by a subsidiary of Franklin, Tennessee based H B Sconyers and Company, has broken ground on Hunter's Ridge, an estimated 1,300 acre recreational development project in Jamestown, Tennessee. The project is tailored for the outdoor enthusiast and is in close proximity to East Fork Stables, The Big South Fork State Park and many other area attractions.

"Our development will dovetail with what is already happening in the area." said Brian Sconyers, President of H B Sconyers, referring to the equestrian and outdoor rustic themed area on the Cumberland Plateau. "People enjoy getting out and riding their horses and mountain bikes or fishing in the ponds and rivers, and we are developing the perfect place for that."

The development, named Hunter's Ridge, is estimated to be a five to seven year undertaking, and Jedd Land Company has already made approximately $6 million of investments of the projected $10 million planned total. "This project is going to really help establish this area as a recreational destination. There is so much going on up there, we just need to help get the word out." said Sconyers. "Developing this area during the recent economic downturn is allowing us to provide excellent opportunities for our customers at less than traditional costs." The venture is also expected to create a number of jobs in construction, management and sales.
